Howe Sound Women's Centre Coordinates Clothing Drive To First Nations Communities

SQUAMISH, BC (July 21, 2014) The Howe Sound Women's Centre Society will be hitting the Sea to Sky Highway today with a van full of clothing destined for the First Nations of Lil'wat, In-SHUCK-Ch, and N'Quatqua. The clothing drive comes as a result of a surplus of donations received through Pearl's Value & Vintage in recent months, and the Society is looking to redistribute the clothing to other communities in need. An assortment of free clothing for men, women, and children will be available at the following locations:

- Mount Currie Health Care Centre: 201 Black Bear Road, Mount Currie
- Southern St'itl'imx Health Society: Unit 6 – 7327 Industrial Way, Pemberton

In-SHUCK-Ch staff will also deliver goods to remote communities and families in need.

"We have been very fortunate with the donations received from the community, and this is an opportunity for us to extend that generosity to other residents in our service area that may not otherwise have access to new or gently used clothing," says Sheila Allen, executive director of the Howe Sound Women's Centre Society.

For more information on the clothing drive, email Suzan Lemmers, Pearl's Safe Home Coordinator, at psh@hswc.ca.
